

A Divine Guest

Jesus could be handy as a guest;
hosts needn't worry about supplies (though throngs might crash the party),
he makes wine fine and is good with fish,
tells the hostess to take a load off,
uplifts those who are sick with despair.
He'll love everyone who shows up,
he guarantees a good time for all;
anyone who meets him would love him.
Jesus has a great sense of humor,
can be the true life of the party;
he'll listen to others endlessly (he's the best bartender in the world).
Yeah, what a friend we have in Jesus – he'll always be up for a good time, always show up when he's invited,
present at times of need and of joy;
doesn't get any better than him.
Hey, think I'll start the party right now!

By Judy Hays-Eberts, ©8/30/07